This Week in the Senate

February 26 - March 1, 2018

Moving Into March

The Senate completed three legislative days this week – Monday, February 26, Wednesday, February 28 and Thursday, March 1.

On Monday, during a long and productive day in the chamber, the Senate passed 28 pieces of legislation. One of these was a resolution I sponsored, Senate Resolution 794, which would create a joint Georgia-North Carolina and Georgia-Tennessee Boundary Line Commission. Members of this commission would work together to resolve the issues associated with an incorrect survey of our northern state border. I look forward to addressing this important issue during the interim.

February closed out with Crossover Day, where the Upper Chamber vigilantly debated 41 pieces of legislation. We worked long into the evening, addressing a number of topics like health care, broadband access, transit, criminal justice reform and higher education. Senator Chuck Payne (R – Dalton) presented his first two bills, Senate Bill 450, which addresses unlawful enticement of game for hunting, and Senate Bill 453, which addresses parental requirements for child resuscitation.

On Thursday, the Senate took up three House measures, notably among them: House Bill 918, which is the biggest tax cut since 1937 for our great state. HB 918 will align Georgia's tax code with the recent changes made at the federal level. Under HB 918, the income tax rate would be reduced from 6 percent to 5.75 percent in 2019 and then to 5.5 percent in 2020 upon approval by the General Assembly. HB 918 saves taxpayers approximately $5 billion over the next five years.

I would like to personally thank all of the members and staff for their hard work and efforts during the long hours of this week. It is great to see what positive impacts can be made on Georgia's citizens when we all come together, work hard and put the needs of the people first. Next week we will meet for three legislative days. The other two days will be reserved for committee meetings where the focus will move to House Bills. If you have any questions, feedback or comments, please do not hesitate to reach out.
